LESBIAN HERSTORY ARCHIVES

Rita and Debbie on Bank of Lake in New Orleans in the 70s. This image is part of the Herstory slide show.

HERSTORY OF THE ARCHIVES

The Lesbian Herstory Archives, the largest and oldest Lesbian archive in the world, began in 1973 as an outgrowth of a Lesbian consciousness-raising group at the Gay Academic Union in New York City. The founders were concerned about the failure of mainstream publishers, libraries, archives, and research institutions to value Lesbian culture. It became obvious that the only way to insure the preservation of Lesbian culture and history was to establish an independent archive, governed by Lesbians. With planning underway in 1974, the archive was established in its first physical space in 1976, in the pantry of Joan Nestle's and Deborah Edel's Upper West Side apartment. The Archives was legally incorporated as The Lesbian Herstory Educational Foundation, a non-profit foundation, in 1980. The collection expanded rapidly, along with a group of volunteers. Visitors began streaming through the doors. Now an expanded group of coordinators take care of the archives and have undertaken the purchase of a permanent home in Brooklyn.

A contingent of volunteers and friends march with the Lesbian Herstory Archives banner in every NYC Gay Pride Day. Women from around the Country carry posters and world signs for "Lesbian" in many languages.

Representing a large collection of Lesbian pulp fiction from the 50s, 60s and 70s. Before Stonewall, no dangerous sexual portrayal of the life and relationships of Lesbian lifestyle. Like today's TV, the representations are often bombed and distorted.

Gertrude Stein, Photographer, Collector. The archives has a partial collection of the photos taken in and from studios around the country. She was the of Lesbians.

THE COLLECTION

Archives collects and preserves any materials that are at of the lives and experiences of Lesbians: books, zines, journals, news clippings, bibliographies, e, historical information, tapes, films, diaries, oral ories, poetry and prose, biographies, posters, ographies, notices of events, graphics, and other ythelia and obscure references to our lives. e Archives houses over 10,000 volumes, 12,000 ssays, 200 special collections; 1,400 periodical 1,000 organizational and subject files. chers, working on a wide variety of projects use chives. Some visitors come just to browse and talk r Lesbians, others come to find specific materials ademic research, or images for a film project, or contacts in Asia.

The Archives has a growing collection of Lesbian political and cultural buttons, as well as an extensive T-shirt collection.

Lesbian Pulp Fiction: a large collection of Lesbian pulp fiction from the 50s, 60s and 70s. Below (lowered) are examples which provoke one of the two representations of Lesbian lifestyles. Lefty today's pulp, has representations now often limited and distorted.

Grace Gregg, Schomburg Library, Harlem. Grace was a central contributor of the Harlem Renaissance. Her photo is proud the country, the city, by a Lesbian.

Denver press favorably reported MATTACHINE NATIONAL CONVENTION in Denver, CO. Publicity was scarce then, and favorable publicity non-existent. A resolution planted by a FBI agent at Denver thanking San Francisco's Mayor and Police Chief for making things so nice for gays - something neither had done - became a major issue in the mayoralty race. The smear backfired and gave gay San Francisco homophiles a burst of fair publicity.
